Description

Position Summary:

The Department of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Columbia University Irving Medical Center in New York City seeks a full-time faculty member at the rank of Assistant Professor to serve as Clinical Psychologist in the Women's Mental Health @OBGYN program. The academic title will be determined by the candidate's qualifications.

The successful applicant will play a key role in shaping our integrated, insurance-based, mental health program via the provision evidenced-based psychotherapies and care coordination for patients in the department. The ideal candidate will have a keen interest in women's mental health across the life course and/or experience with a perinatal population; have significant psychotherapy experience as well as an investment in the practice of it. The program currently consists of two full-time faculty members, a psychiatric nurse practitioner, and four licensed clinical social workers. The position is available immediately.

Clinical responsibilities will include:

- Providing short-term psychotherapeutic treatments (typically up to six months postpartum when needed)
- Collaborating with the Program Senior Leadership to implement new initiatives and build the program.
- Collaborating with other team members including administrative staff, medical students, residents, fellows, psychology and social work trainees and research staff.
- Participating in peer psychotherapy supervision.
- Providing supervision to trainees.

The program also offers significant opportunities for engagement in related research activities.

Qualification Requirements:

- PhD or PsyD in clinical or counseling psychology
- Licensed in the state of New York

A bilingual candidate (English/Spanish) with previous experience in OBGYN/women's health is strongly preferred.

The University provides excellent benefits including 23 days of vacation and ample CME time. In addition, Columbia offers fee-based onsite daycare and nursery school. Faculty members are eligible for tuition exemption and tuition assistance for family members.
